Mans Impatience os Government makes two ill Optmorn grateful to him, l. TJje firjl Opinion examined, with Rejpeil both to Church and State, 2, 3. The Second refuted, 4. A Third added, and d strange Change in Men observed, . (10N Ertainly there is scarce a greater Ar gument of the Corruption of human J Nature, than that the Generality of - Mankind are in a constant Conspiracy against their own Good. For though nothing be more necessary for the Peace, Safety, and Welfare of Mari, than Government, yet he can hardly endure to be circumscribd witkin Bounds, or be liable to Restraint; and is not easily perswaded, that he hath any Liberty, if he have not a Licenca to do as he list. Hence it is, that those Opinions or Dotfrines, which invest him with Power, right or wrong, are very grateful unto him; and so fond he is of them, that he will not stay to conlider, whether they are Well grounded, but despiseth every thing, that is, or can be said against them, though with the greatest Evidence and Force of Reason: Though the Book lye bare, yet the Bait fails not to take and he not onlv bites, B but but greedily swallows down all to his own Trouble and Anguish, and too often to his utter Destruction. Of these sort of Opinions, there are two very prevalent, and much applauded, in these Times, which turn many Mens...
