Excerpt: . . . programs of the Social Security Act will focus attention on early childhood services for low-income families. To review the services provided in early childhood centers, GAO used several different methodologies: consulting with experts; conducting case studies of early childhood programs and services in four states--California, Louisiana, Maryland, and Michigan-- as well as conducting case studies in two low-income census tracts in each of these states (see app. II); and analyzing a nationally representative sample of early childhood centers (see app. III). RESULTS IN BRIEF ----- Chapter 0: 3 Early childhood experts agree that to be prepared for school, disadvantaged children need intellectual stimulation, parental support, and adequate health care and nutrition. Early childhood centers can help meet these needs by providing a full range of services--child development, parent, and health and nutrition. Child development services encourage developmental appropriateness--suitable to a child's age and individual level of development--in all activities; these services also promote the responsiveness of teachers to the child. Parent services actively involve parents in their...
